

The Cancer Support Your Employees Need

Naviance™ helps you contain health care costs while also helping impacted employees. Developed and used at Johns Hopkins, Naviance provides personalized support that helps your workforce reduce cancer risk, detect symptoms early and access the right care at the right time. It ensures employees receive expert guidance through our Oncology Nurse Navigators, whether they're dealing with cancer themselves or supporting a loved one.

How It Works

Naviance is a benefit for your employees and their loved ones offering expert-led guidance and support throughout the entire cancer journey. It can be implemented any time, even outside of your benefits enrollment cycle, to make sure your employees have access to the cancer support they need.

Provide your employees with:

- Navigation to the best clinical care, nationwide
- Access to trusted resources for patients, caregivers and managers
- Guidance on work-life balance, including workplace rights and accommodations
- Referrals to other employee benefits
- Quick access to compassionate care and support

Work with Naviance to support your workforce.

Helping Your Employees

Naviance addresses direct and indirect health care costs. Our Oncology Nurse Navigators guide your employees to second opinion services and personalized clinical resources for cost-effective care and help avoid absenteeism through education and empowerment.

Helping Your Workplace

Naviance offers targeted training for managers on how to support employees impacted by cancer so they can thrive in the workplace and you can maintain as much continuity as possible for your business.

“I have referred several employees to [the Nurse Navigators] and I cannot tell you enough praise for their abilities. Every person I have sent states they are amazing, caring and very helpful. Some have said they are the best people they have talked to going through this process so far. I will continue to refer everyone who has a cancer diagnosis, whether it is themselves, a family member or a friend, to use this valuable resource.”
